

Part-Time Internship

Who we are:

KoverNow Pte Ltd is a Singapore based insurtech start-up. As an insurance technology provider, we are creating an 'end-to-front' digital user experience; starting with a niche market segment. We do this by decompartmentalizing insurance products to befit one's lifestyle and by making processes more transparent and user-friendly. For our launch product 'Items KOVER', we have partnered with an international carrier to complete our MLP (Minimum Lovable Product). We are currently working through the framework to execute our go-to-market strategy.

What we offer:

We offer a part-time internship (20 hours per week) for three months (or longer, subject to mutually agreement). The successful candidate will work directly with the founders and management team to take the product from MLP to market adoption and help prepare for an external funding round. The position is available immediately.

What you should be interested in:

- calibrating and testing the economics of the business case
- refining product details and marketing strategies
- discuss interim results with our business partners
- assist us in managing legal and regulatory aspects in relation to the setup and supervisory functions

What you should bring:

You should be a graduate or final year undergraduate; ideally with some practical work experience. A healthy dose of confidence; a can-do attitude; a proven ability to think and work outside one's comfort zone; ideally paired with grades demonstrating your ability to deliver quality results. A good grasp of MS Office (especially Excel and Power Point) would be an advantage.
